and spread his tent beyond the tower of Edar.

A close-up photograph of several ranunculus flowers. The central focus is a large, fully bloomed flower with many layers of petals, transitioning from bright yellow at the center to a vibrant orange at the edges. To its right, a smaller flower is in full bloom, displaying a mix of pink and purple petals. In the foreground, another flower is partially visible, showing yellow and orange hues. Several green buds are also present, some showing a hint of pink. The background is filled with dark green, feathery foliage, creating a rich, textured backdrop for the colorful blooms.
