

A close-up photograph of pink hydrangea flowers. The foreground shows several large, open flowers with five petals each, displaying a vibrant pink color with some darker spots. In the background, there is a dense cluster of smaller, unopened buds and partially open flowers, creating a textured and layered appearance. The lighting is soft, highlighting the delicate structure of the petals.

Psalm 132:11 The LORD hath sworn in truth unto David; he will not turn from it; Of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne.